THESE DAYS AT THE LIBRARY

“Empower your writing process”, the second module of the training cycle for PhD students “From research to publication”, will take place for the first time on September 3rd. Program and registration are available on the library website.

Research Data Management: a new email address to answer your queries

The EPFL Library, the Research Office and the VPSI are setting up a collaborative service to support your research data management strategies.

To answer any query you may have on:

- How to manage the data produced in the course of your research projects and activities
- How to set up a data management plan that may be part of your funding agencies’ requirements
- How to store produced data

feel free to contact the team at the following address: datamanagementplan@epfl.ch

INFORMATION RESOURCES

Trial June 8th to 14th

“FDI Markets Library” is a database of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) available, covering all countries and sectors worldwide. A Trial of FDI Markets Library is organized by the EPFL Library during one week in June.

Resource description

“FDI Markets Library” provides reliable data for research in International Business, Finance and Economics. It gives a clear picture of who is investing where in the world, in which sector, how much they invest and how many jobs they create.

This database, produced by the FT, provides access to crossborder investment broken down by sector (based on a proprietary industry classification system) and country.

Trial details

- from 8th to 14th June 2015
- with IP access (access from EPFL network or through VPN)
- Direct access through FDI Markets Library

Please contact edoc.bib@epfl.ch if you encounter any access issue.

Any feedback on the product is most welcome; please do not hesitate to let your librarian know what you think of this resource [usefulness, relevance, accessibility to the data...].
HAVE YOU HEARD ABOUT...

"Rational Bibliographic" is the brand new guide for the writing of bibliographic references produced by the EPFL Library. It will help you cite correctly 26 different types of documents.

You need to cite a book chapter, an article from a scientific journal, a thesis or conference proceedings?

As mentioned in the preamble LEX 1.3.3 by EPFL: “It is normal that a large part of a written work should be based on what others have already created or discovered. The resulting written work, whatever its nature, must however comply with the following rules in order to avoid any form of plagiarism.”

The EPFL Library provides students, PhD candidates, researchers and faculty with numerous resources addressing the citation rules in the context of students’ work, scientific publication or the production of course notes.

Resources available:

* Website citation.epfl.ch
* Guide for the writing of bibliographic references “Rational Bibliographic” (in French)
* Video tutorials “Citer correctement ses sources” and “Rédiger une bibliographie” (in French)
* Bibliography and debate « Plagiat, fraude des flammards ou fléau du savoir ? » [in French]
* Exhibition « Incollable sur la citation ? Testez-vous ! » [in French]

RESOURCES FOR THE NEXT ACADEMIC YEAR

* Time is coming to fill in or update the «bibliography» part of your course books on IS-Academia, so that your librarian can purchase the material the students are requested to read.

* Please contact your liaison librarian before the end of September should you wish to propose any new subscription [database or journal] for 2016.
